Quantification to Amplification Calculations

10µl Input DNA + 15µl Master Mix = 25µl Amps

(ID+ 10µl total input DNA) + (10µl extra volume for robotic pipetting) = 20µl total input DNA

Number of Samples to be Amped:	65
Normalization End Column #:	9

P50 Setup is used if volume is between 2.0µl and 10.9µl

P200 Setup is used if volume is over 11.0µl

Verify that TE volumes do not exceed 110µl or 230µl

This purpose of this report is to document Detective Oliver's investigative efforts in the death of Jordan Davis.

Friday/11-23-12/2028 hours: I received a page from the Detective Dispatcher directing me to respond to 8251 Southside Boulevard in reference to a shooting.

2045: I was directed by Sergeant Paul to respond to the Homicide Office to interview witnesses that were being transported from the scene.

2120: I arrived at the Homicide Office to conduct interviews with witnesses.

2222: I interviewed witness [REDACTED] at the Homicide Office. [REDACTED] advised she arrived at the Gate Gas Station with [REDACTED] in a brown colored Dodge truck. She stated she went inside to use the bathroom. She also advised she remembered the red SUV being in the parking lot as she went into the store. When [REDACTED] came out of the store she heard one of the passengers from the red SUV asking the victim if he was okay. She did not see the victim who was still inside the truck. [REDACTED] did not witness the shooting and did not hear any gunshots. She returned to her vehicle and she and [REDACTED] began driving out of the parking lot. As they were leaving [REDACTED] told her he witnessed the suspect get in a black vehicle and flee the parking lot. She told [REDACTED] to drive back to the scene so he could provide the information to the police.

2231: I interviewed [REDACTED] at the Homicide Office. [REDACTED] stated he arrived at the Gate Gas Station with [REDACTED] went inside the business to use the bathroom while [REDACTED] stayed in his truck. [REDACTED] stated he heard what he thought were "firecrackers". He looked around and observed a middle [REDACTED] male with grayish colored hair in a dark colored car. The white male was squatting down shooting a gun. [REDACTED] stated he thought the suspect was shooting into the ground trying to scare the victims. It wasn't until late [REDACTED] learned someone had been shot.

[REDACTED] was able to obtain the suspect vehicle's tag number (937 VMV). He also advised a white female in her thirties got into the suspect vehicle prior to it leaving the scene. The suspect vehicle fled the scene north bound on Southside Boulevard.

[REDACTED] advised he was parked approximately three parking spaces to the left of the red SUV prior to the shooting.

2248: I interviewed [REDACTED] at the Homicide Office. [REDACTED] stated he was driving his Dodge Durango this evening. He stated he picked up [REDACTED] at approximately 1300 hours today. They then picked up [REDACTED] from an unknown address off of Sunbeam Road. They next stopped at a Shell Gas Station on Baymeadows Road and then went to the St. Johns Town Center (4663 River City Drive). [REDACTED] stated they stayed at the St. Johns Town Center for approximately forty-five minutes. En route to take everyone home, they stopped at the Gate Gas Station located on the corner of Southside Boulevard and Baymeadows Road. He advised [REDACTED] was seated in the left rear seat, [REDACTED] was in the front passenger seat and [REDACTED] was in the right rear seat. [REDACTED] went into the business to buy gum and cigarettes. [REDACTED] stated he went into the store and left the other three in the SUV. He came back out of the store and got into the driver's seat of his SUV. [REDACTED] stated he observed the suspect talking, but he could not hear what he was saying. He then observed the suspect pull out a black and silver gun, cock it and pointed it at the vehicle. [REDACTED] stated he attempted to pull out of the parking lot when the suspect began shooting. He heard what he thought was the rear passenger window shattering. He drove a couple of hundred feet and then stopped to see if anyone was hit and if there was damage to his vehicle. [REDACTED] then backed the SUV back into the Gate Gas Station parking lot and pulled up next to a white truck. The driver of the white truck advised they were on the phone with police.

[REDACTED] stated the suspect was driving a black newer model car.

11-24-12/0535: I responded to the Gate Gas Station and met with [REDACTED] who provided another copy of the store's surveillance video. Detective Oliver was able to see the camera views recorded at the business. Detective Oliver was able to verify there was no outside video surveillance. He also verified the incident was not captured by the business's inside cameras.

*Note- It was later determined the surveillance video could not be viewed on Jacksonville Sheriff's Office issued laptops due to internal restrictions.

11-29-12/1044: I contacted [REDACTED] by telephone. [REDACTED] agreed to meet with detectives at 1300 hours.

1645: I spoke with witness [REDACTED] by phone. [REDACTED] agreed to come to the State Attorney's Office on 11-30-12 at 1000 hours for purposes of providing a sworn statement.

I also spoke with witness [REDACTED] by phone. [REDACTED] agreed to come to the State Attorney's Office on 11-30-12 at 1045 hours for purposes of providing a sworn statement.

Hello my darling daughter!

I never once felt like you had abandoned me, so put that thought right out of your mind! I am doing O.K., under the circumstances. You know I was never a big fan of the government before this all happened - you can imagine how much I appreciate it now! Regarding the new judge. If you will recall, we had a bond hearing before Judge BIAS, and she refused to follow prior case law and she refused my bond request. Later, she refused my request for indigent status, even though I qualified. She has clearly showed a bias against me and is living up to her name! My lawyer put forth a motion for Judge BIAS to recuse herself from the case, citing all her biased rulings from the indigency hearing. Too much time had passed to cite anything from the bond hearing, though she was clearly biased then as well. She agreed to recuse herself, basically agreeing that she is biased against me. So now we have a new judge, one with more experience. We get a new bond hearing, which I'm told will be held on July 12. After that, we'll get another hearing on the indigency status. Hopefully then the State will pay my defense expenses.

The lady D.A., Angela Corey, has listed so many witnesses (100+) ^{and} it is going to cost about $100 per witness to conduct the deposition. She is trying to bury me in legal fees, as she knows she has no chance of a conviction. If you haven't already, ask [REDACTED] to e-mail you my recounting of what happened that night. The legal process almost always takes this long when you waive your right to a speedy trial. The D.A. made it impossible to mount a decent defense, as she delayed delivering the "Discovery" evidence and has listed so many potential witnesses. My attorney has asked for a list of the witnesses they plan to have testify, and they have refused. It's almost as if they're trying to hold me for as long as possible, because they know they have such a weak case against me and no chance of winning. Corey, my attorney, says I have a much stronger case of self-defense than Zimmerman does. He said that I should not worry if he loses, but it's a great sign if he wins.

I'm very happy to know you'll be studying business! I have no idea what it entails or what opportunities are available, but you had mentioned international business at one time. It seems to me that you should concentrate on your language studies along with business, and leave the dance lessons for when you're working in France! Spain has quite a dance culture as well, if you prefer to use your Spanish language skills instead. I'm sure there's even a demand for bi-lingual business people in Mexico, if you wanted to stay closer to home. You have relatives in banking over there...

So tell me about this opportunity at Nation Wide. What will you be doing? I hope you're over your stress-induced hives and your tummy is feeling better. I know how stressful it can be when you're first starting out. Your Mom and I took a bus out to California and I really didn't have a plan. I knew the insurance money from the motorcycle accident I was in would come eventually, but the idea to go to school for computers didn't come until we got there.

It's good to make plans, but try not to stress yourself out too much making them. I'm sure you'll do fine, as you have a good head on your shoulders and you are ambitious.

Next time you write, I hope you have good news about your job interview with nation wide.

I love and miss you very much!
Hope to be able to call you next month!

Love,

Dad

Hello [REDACTED]!

6-26

Thanks for taking the time to write me!
I appreciate all the positive energy you can throw my way! As you can imagine, I'm not getting much in the way of sympathy from the press. There's a bunch of liberal bastards! ☹️ After reading all the inaccurate reporting on my case, I am highly suspect of everything they bought and paid for press reports on.

North Florida is more like the deep South. They seem to have a lot of racial guilt, or at least the prosecutor's office does.
The jail here is almost all black prisoners.
You'd think Jacksonville was 90-95% black, judging by the makeup of the folks in jail here! I've never seen a group of people so racially divided. The blacks hate the whites and the whites hate the blacks up here. My fear is that if I get 1 black on my jury, it will be a mistrial, as I am convinced they will be racially biased. I hope you got a chuckle from the Bolling Stones article. One more example of fiction masquerading as journalism! Thanks for taking such good care of my baby girl and for being such a good friend to her.

-Mike

P.S. I Liked your Son Tzu. Here's mine:

I can't begin to describe to you how much you warmed my heart when you referred to Brandon as my future step-son. I love you so much and I can't wait to put all this nonsense behind us and get on with our lives. I can't help but to feel hopeful for our future together, and that things will turn to our favor soon. I've been thinking about the bond hearing and what to say on the stand. I'm very clear on what happened at the convenience store, but a bit hazy on the rest. Here is what I recall. Please let me know if I've overlooked something, or if I'm wrong on something.

Hi Sweetheart!

It's a little after 11:00 AM on Sunday. I am upset, as the phone has been out of order since it cut us off yesterday around 2:45. I've been bugging the guards since 6:00 PM Saturday, which is when I first realized there was a problem. Turns out there is nobody here on the weekends to fix it, and the outage is only affecting a few floors, so they're reluctant to call somebody in. I told them that since some phones are working, it is more than likely a network issue and all they need to do is look for a network switch with all the activity lights on solid, then cycle the power. For some reason, they're not taking me seriously and doing what I said! (3) I sure am not used to being ignored like this, especially when it comes to troubleshooting computer glitches. Since I didn't get a chance to talk to you this morning, I thought I'd write to you! I got a new neighbor yesterday. The black guy that was there got moved across the way, and they put an old white man there instead.

I overheard the mental health people talking to him and he claims to be suicidal. Not sure what he's been taking, but they said something about an overdose.
I haven't spoken to him yet, but I was thinking to suggest an easy way to die would be to ask a car load of thugs to turn their stereos down! ☹ Somehow I don't think that would get the laugh I was going for. That's all I have for now, besides the usual... That I love a. miss you and I dream about you every night.
I am so looking forward to being reunited. I feel like a part of me has been missing.

Love You!

- Michael David

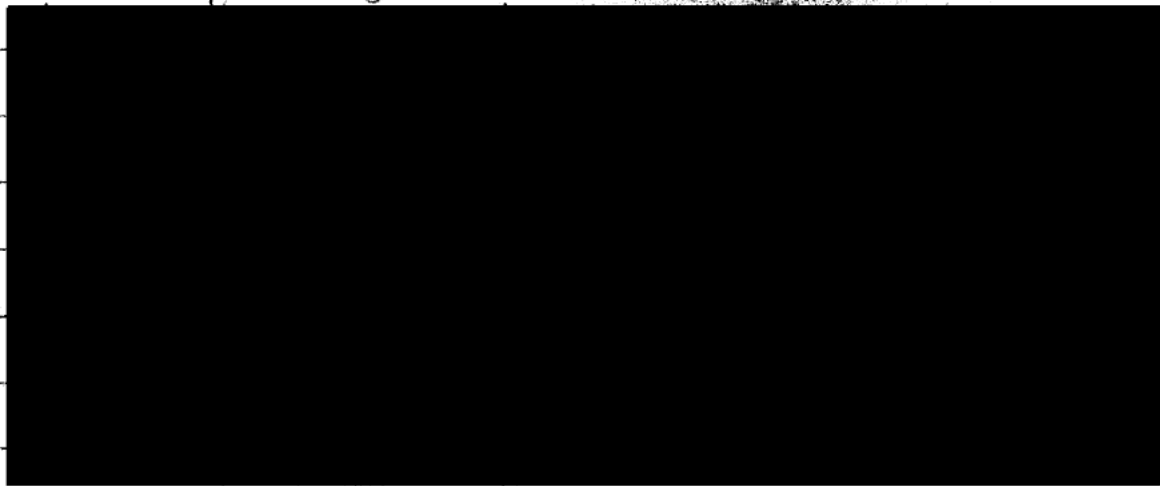

P.S. It's after 7:00 PM and still no phoner!

I will be sure to write a stronger warning letter to the newspaper!

Wow! That's probably more detailed than we'll need to get at the bond hearing. I just wanted to make sure

I love and miss you very much! Please write back and let me know if there are any inaccuracies or omissions. I had 2 hours sleep that night and it's not as clear as the events of the night before. I'll rely on your memory to fill in any gaps.

Love You!

Hi Baby!

"Secret" message for you. Hint: ?

Today has been long and boring despite the "excitement" of this morning. What passed for excitement these days is that they cleaned my cell (finally). I had to pack all my stuff together and put it outside. They removed all the paper I have blocking the airvents. So I spent some time getting things back in order.

I spoke with [redacted] this morning. He mentioned that some potential jurors for the Zimmerman trial are worried for their safety. That says quite a bit about the black community. Where one Jessie Jackson and Al Sharpton. 😊 Mom said something interesting the other day. One of Jordan Davis' friends is purported to have said that he wishes he had been there, as he could have "talked him down". Cory said he had trouble with authority figures in school as well. This will all work out OK for us Babe. I promise!

So this letter just started out so I could send you a secret message. I hope you were able to decrypt it! Hope you can read my hand writing OK. Still ~~too many~~ mistakes to use a pen!
I just got off the phone with you and we were talking about how racist the blacks are up here. The more time I am exposed to these people the more prejudiced against them I become. I suppose the white folks who live here are pretty much anti-black, at least the ones who have been exposed to them. I sure am looking forward to coming home.

I'm also looking forward to moving out of the South and away from the scourge of this country. ☺ Does Colorado Springs still sound good to you? Would be fun to pop on over to Utah to visit Mom and Dad when they're there too. I love you baby and I'll write to you again soon.

Hi Grandma!

I've been thinking about you too! I missed getting a letter from you for a while, but knew you were busy. Thanks for keeping me in your thoughts!

I went to a pre-trial hearing last week. A big waste of time. The state was supposed to have delivered all of their so-called evidence against me by Jan 30. They didn't get it to my attorney until Feb 11, and then all of the documents were in a proprietary format that the attorney couldn't read! The good news is that someone made a 911 call that will hopefully exonerate me. I'm hoping that my attorney is able to get sworn statements or something from those 3 cops and catch them in their lies before they find out the contents of that 911 call and start making up more stories! I am amazed at what is going on - with the way the media has been covering this case. There have been several other shootings here in Jacksonville, yet they are all either black on black or black on white - and none of them have garnered any attention from the media. I guess it's news when someone dares to not be a victim, but they are twisting it around and saying I was the 'bad guy'. Thanks for listening and letting me vent my frustrations a bit. I don't have a date yet for the bond hearings, but I've told sometime in March now. I hope to be home soon. Please say a prayer for me!

Love You! - Mike

Dear [REDACTED]

Thank you for writing me! I save all my letters and re-read them from time to time. They are my treasures and I'll be sure to add yours to the collection! I really enjoyed reading your letter, as it was very "upbeat" and filled me with hope. [REDACTED] and I were talking about visiting this year around this time, but our plans have changed... 😊 I'm sure Mom has kept you in the loop with what is going on. I wrote a detailed statement for my attorney. [REDACTED] is going to transcribe that into an electronic format so we'll be sure to e-mail it to you. Nothing earth shattering in there, though it gave me a good scare. As soon as I get home I am fully committed to eating better and exercising! Having faced a life or death situation, I've finally realized my own mortality and am ready to start taking my health seriously. I had been following [REDACTED] exploits through [REDACTED] facebook postings. I saw where she was doing well in martial-arts and even competing, if I recall correctly. She sure has a competitive spirit and now has turned it towards sleigh/carriage driving. That's too cool! If you are able to write again, please describe what a snowtrail groomer does and looks like. I am imagining something heavy to compact the snow for the sleigh runners, but wasn't sure. I was hoping to be home sometime in Feb - but it looks like my good hearing won't be until sometime in March. If you guys have the time, please stop by and visit [REDACTED] on your way down South. We're at a townhouse right on the beach in Melbourne. I know she'd like the company. Her # is [REDACTED]

It's right on the way if you take [REDACTED]

Grandma has been writing - telling me about her active life. I was sorry to hear that she fell, but relieved that she had her cell phone and that [REDACTED] was able to rescue her! It's so cold out, I can imagine how deadly it would be to spend the night outdoors...

Sounds like you are having fun with the skiing!

That's something I've never done, though I think I would like to try snowboarding one day before

I become too brittle! Between Mom & [REDACTED]

they are keeping me supplied with books to while away the time. I cannot begin to tell you how bad it sucks to be here, though I have to remind myself it's better than being dead. Rather be judged by 12 than carried by 6! I guess I'll stop now before

I get too bitter. I'm not happy with our legal system right now and feel I'm being pre-judged by the media. I'm glad I don't live here in Jacksonville, the murder capital of Florida!

Love you all!

Hi Grandma [REDACTED]

Thanks for writing! I save all my mail and re-read them from time to time. I consider them my treasures and will be sure to add yours to my collection! You are too kind! I was blushing through your first page and enjoyed reading how you cared for Grandpa [REDACTED] and how you met [REDACTED]. I often wondered why people lived up North, especially during the winter season. I always figured you liked the cold for some reason. ☺ I have a few memories of Grandma [REDACTED] but I remember spending more time with you + Grandpa [REDACTED]. I recall when you and some of your girls visited us in the Keys. I was infatuated with one of your daughters, though I don't recall her name. All your kids were "cool", as I recall. Looking back on things, I wonder if I would have been any good at acting. It's funny how you mentioned Clark Gable, thanks for the compliment! When [REDACTED] and I first started dating, I had lost some weight and my face was a bit leaner. We would walk through a mall or the park together and she would chuckle at the women doing double-takes at us. I would tease her and tell her she is so attractive, she even turns the heads of women! Truth is, they were probably just noticing two people very much in love, though she would tease me back by saying I was so handsome. Awww Shucks! Speaking of the Keys, I should mention that we kept track of where the lobster traps were using latitude/longitude coordinates. That was before GPS, using ground based stations called LORAN. There was a LORAN coordinates system, but the device I used converted that to lat/long for me. It was easier to use, as it was more right-angles. I would steer the boat by compass and be given my current position. Then I would know to head East and a little North or whatever to arrive at the 1st buoy in a line of traps. We always laid our traps on a certain compass heading, so once you found 1, you could easily locate the rest. I kept a map at home and used stick pins and yarn to give me a "big picture" visual as well. I'm telling you this so you know that I was using a log book and electronic navigation equipment instead of just my brain. Though there were plenty of fishermen who did it that way, I had other things to clutter up my mind with! You also mentioned the motorcycle I had in the keys. As I'm sure you know, I had a serious accident with my then girlfriend [REDACTED] on the back. I was hurt pretty badly - tore my ACL on my right knee. [REDACTED] shattered her thigh bone and had to have a rod inserted so she could heal. Those were dark times, but we healed up and used the insurance money to buy lumber to build lobster traps, and later - when we got the settlement years later from Mom + Dad's underinsured motorist coverage - used that to go to school for computer programming. I have to tell you - I was awful at first! I had never really used a computer before and the class was full of people that already knew how to program them!

I made friends with most of the class and with some hard work and extra tutelage from my classmates - things began to make sense and I was able to keep up with the class. We started out with a class of 20 students and graduated 15. I was happy to be counted amongst the 15 who graduated! It was especially sweet for me, as a prerequisite for the school was a high school diploma. I had dropped out my junior year, so had to go sit for a GED test. Funny story: I stopped by a high school to inquire about taking the GED test and was told that I couldn't just take the test, that I'd have to attend classes in order to prepare for it. I didn't have the time or patience for that - computer programming classes were starting in a week! The lady relented, saying I could take a "practice test" to see where I was at academically. I took the test and it was all multiple choice - fill in the bubble. She fed the answer sheet into a machine to grade it and then said "Oh, you can come in tomorrow to take the test." Yay! I think I had been out of school for like 6 yrs by then. Was very happy that I had retained something! I sent Grandpa [redacted] a copy of my GED - he had been against me dropping out of high school. I guess I'm telling you all of this to let you know that things always seem to work out. [redacted] knows all of these stories and tells me I could fall into a pile of shit and step out smelling like a rose. If she only knew about all of the hard work that I put in. It only looks easy! Back in '04 or '05 when Dad had his quadruple bypass surgery. I realized this mortality. I still wasn't able to face my own yet... At the time, he had a motorcycle and would meet up with friends and ride. I bought one so I could join him. I wanted to spend more time with him and figured I'd enjoy sharing his hobbies. He was flying the Champ now, and encouraged me to learn as well. We would fly together over to Okeechobee for breakfast and meet up with his pilot buddies. After 9 months of training, I took my written and oral exams, then the check-out flight and became a newly-minted private pilot! Whew! hard work, but very worth it! I mentioned that I hadn't faced my own mortality yet. [REDACTED] was asking me, as recently as October "When are you going to lose weight and start exercising?" and I would tell her "After my 2nd heart attack!" I figured by then I would realize that I'm not going to live forever and start taking my health seriously. ☺ [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] I realized very quickly, that I love life too much to let it be taken away from me! I've lost some weight sitting here in jail and am exercising daily now too! I wrote up a statement on what happened that night has it and is going to transcribe it into an electronic document. I'll ask Mom to forward you a copy of it. There is so much mis-information and outright lies being reported in the media. I don't know what you've read or heard, but I wanted to assure you that I'm not the monster they're portraying me to be!

Everyone who knows me knows that is not the kind of person I am - and I'm sure you feel the same.

I'm really not prejudiced against race, but I have no use for certain cultures. This gangster-Rae, ghetto talking thug "culture" that certain segments of society flock to is intolerable. They espouse violence and disrespect towards women. The black community here in Jacksonville is in an uproar against me - the 3 other thugs that were in the car are telling stories to cover up their true "colors".

I'm not worried about the trial. I have the truth and the law on my side.

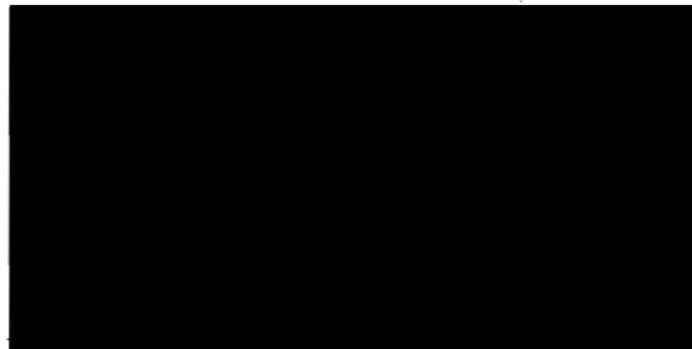

Right now I'm focused on my bond hearing - hoping - praying - that they will grant me a bond so that I can return home and wait the 12-18 months before trial in peace. Please send positive thoughts and prayers my way. There's lots of negativity being (wrongly) directed towards me right now, so I can use all the positive energy I can get!

Love,

Mike

I've asked [REDACTED] to mail you my written statement. Please transcribe it when you get it. I mentioned this to Cory - I forgot to tell the investigators something he said, so I left it out of the statement. Cory said to go ahead and include it. The part where he says 'You're dead, Bitch' - he also said 'This shit is going down NOW' - I did not please include that you transcribe it.

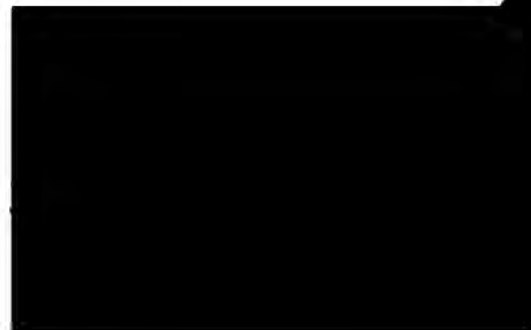

So after speaking with you, [REDACTED] Mom + Dad, I am clearly in the minority w/ my thoughts on making counter claims on the civil suit. I wanted you to know that I appreciated your input and I can certainly see your point. I called [REDACTED] and said I was not going to make any claims against the family. She was relieved that I was able to let go of the hurt feelings I've been harboring. I called Mom + Dad and let them know too. Cory is looking at this and his initial reaction was that it's a bogus suit. Mom has links to them if you're interested. Those two guys that were in the SUV are making all kinds of false claims. In my mind, consistent with covering up what they did. My written statement is very accurate - I tried not to leave out any details. Please send Mom + Becky a copy when you have it.

Thanks!

Baby,

My first envelope to you went out this morning. I hope it reaches you in a timely manner and that you can read my atrocious writing! 😊 I finished the novel I had been reading, now I'm back to reading the Bible and playing Solitaire with the deck of cards I ordered from the commissary. I had a visit from a Mr. Lockett - he's Mitch Stone's partner, and friends with Corey Strolla. He mentioned in passing that I had made no mention of a gun to you, based on your testimony to the prosecutors. He asked what I had told you, and I then realized that we hadn't really discussed what happened, as we were more concerned with whether or not anyone was hurt. Let me assure you, just as I told the detectives who first interviewed me in Melbourne, [REDACTED] and later Mitch Stone - there was a weapon. I cannot say for sure what it was, as I only saw the top portion of the barrel - to me it looked like a shotgun. Between his repeated statements to the effect of 'I should kill that mother-fucker', 'I'm going to kill that mother-fucker' and 'You're DEAD, bitch' - those threats coupled with a visible weapon prompted me to take action. While his words and actions are burned into my memory - I cannot recall if I ever conveyed the details of my decision making to you. It was probably as simple as - 'He threatened to kill me' and we left it at that. For this reason, I've asked you to write down the events of that tragic evening, while it is relatively fresh in your mind. You should record it just as you remember it - I am giving you details.

Now to cast aside any doubts you may have with regards to how I reacted to the threat. IF it weren't for me telling turned it off initially. Baby - I know we'll have plenty of time to discuss this once I am back home - but that may still be weeks from now and I do not want you to be losing sleep or worried about what's left unsaid in the aftermath. Please keep sending your positive thoughts out - as you say there are many lives affected by this tragedy, not just ours. I wanted to also let you know that, when I am crying on the phone with you - it is due to the overwhelming sense of love that washes over me. I am so fortunate to have you in my life. I'm lucky to have the love of my Mom + Dad too. I was fine (not crying) when they visited, until they told me how much they loved me - up to work in a love-less environment, hearing someone tell you that you're loved and valued is a bit overwhelming. On a lighter subject, I will stop blaming you for all the hair in the shower. Each time I comb my hair I have to clean it due to all the tufts of hair.

Coming out of my head! If this keeps up, I will be bald in 5 years. I hope I can keep it that long! So I keep wondering to myself - 'When will the Rose Smell begin?' Because right now, all I smell is shit! 😊 I cannot imagine a single good thing that could possibly come from this. I lie awake at night, wondering about those 3 other men. Hoping that this was God's plan to save them or others from the one somehow. There has to be a mention to what happened - [REDACTED]

So write to me and tell me about the happy things you do throughout your day. Don't agonize over your words too much, but know that I will read them over and over. I wouldn't mind getting a letter from any of our friends either, even though mail is delivered at 5:00 AM. Yes - 5:00 AM. 😊 If you haven't done so already, stop by [REDACTED] and let the girls know I'm OK. I'm sure [REDACTED] will get word back to [REDACTED] but she's in my phone if you wanted to tell her. You don't have your designated driver anymore - so stick to 1 please! I am so achy and sore. I like a firm mattress and all - but this is a bit extreme! I sure miss my recliner and comfy bed, not to mention my 'heater' (that's you). Of all things to let me keep - would you believe I get to wear my own shoes? I have to be the only guy here sporting brand new Nikes! (with shoe laces even!) I will write to you every day that I can. I have my Ups and Downs - trying not to feel sorry for myself and the situation I'm in. When I get down, my thoughts turn to you and I perk back up.

I love you & miss you! - Michael David

Hello [REDACTED]

Where to begin? I'm sure you've heard by now that Judge Cooper wussed out and recused herself. My case was assigned to another judge (the 4th), this time a man. Hopefully, now that we have a judge with balls (haha), I can get a bond. ☺ My hearing will be on the 16th, so the outcome will be old news by the time you get this. I am hopeful. Since you asked why I waived my right to a speedy trial, let me tell you a bit about my case. I never heard of her before, but Angela Corey is the D.A. up here. She's not very well liked, or so I'm told. She's taken a personal interest in my case and has, for political reasons, charged me with murder in the 1st degree. She presented her case to a grand jury and they agreed to indict me on those charges. I'm told that means nothing, as defense is not allowed to present their side during grand jury proceedings, and the prosecution usually gets what they want. We were waiting for the State to produce their evidence against me before we made a motion for a bond hearing. Because of the charge against me, I am not guaranteed a bond and my attorney wanted to have all the facts. The D.A.'s office was supposed to produce the "Discovery" by a certain date, but they were 10 days late. Once they did produce it, it was on a disc. All the information was in Microsoft One Note, which is a proprietary application. To use One Note, you must have the latest version of M.S. Office, which requires the latest version of Windows. My lawyer does not have that software, and in any case, the standard electronic format for court documents is Adobe PDF (Portable Document Format), which is an open standard. Long story short, Angelo Corelli's office took an additional 2 weeks to convert everything, then we were missing pages, etc. We got too close to the date we'd have to go to trial by, my attorney advised me to waive right to speedy trial, as he would not have had enough time to prepare. To top it all off, the DA's office has listed more than 100 potential witnesses. We have to depose them all, and it takes time and costs money. We asked the DA to identify which witnesses would be called to testify and she refused. That's when we decided to put in the motion to declare me an indigent defendant, as the state would then pay the expense of the 100+ depositions. Right now, the priority is to get me bonded out, then we'll do a reconsideration on the indigent hearing. Next, we'll finish the depositions and then finally seek out and hire a few expert witnesses. Someone who can testify about post traumatic stress, someone who use body language so they can attest to the truthfulness of my and [REDACTED] ^{on video} statements. Know this though: We have an eye-witness in the form of a 911 caller who can place the SUV, with the occupants exited, in an area that was not searched by the police. We also have cell phone records showing that the driver made multiple, short duration phone calls, immediately after the incident.

Under Florida law, I do not have to prove self-defense. The State has to prove it was not. Since they did not search the area, they cannot. So this will be more than my word against theirs, thankfully. Even though the driver is a producer of "Gangsta's Rap" videos. Search on "kill me acc" on YouTube and you should be able to find some of his "work". He has at least one video talking about putting someone out of their car and killing them.

Don't make any trouble for yourself, but I would appreciate it if you would somehow, anonymously, respond to any news articles you come across. Jacksonville News 25 has a website that ran a recent article. They keep saying that I shot him because the music was too loud. E-mail Grandma [REDACTED] and ask her to send you the timeline that I wrote. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED] Stuff like that, it would be nice if we could somehow set the record straight. The media has an agenda, not sure what or why, but between mine and Zimmerman's case, the bias is obvious. My attorney said I have a much stronger case of self-defense than Zimmerman. From what I've been told, he has nothing to worry about. The governor appointed Angela Corey to prosecute the Zimmerman case. Matt said he read where a "Citizen Grand Jury" has indicted Angela Corey on charges of falsifying the arrest warrant for Zimmerman. Not sure what that means, but the lady is a menace. I read she won the election here, but she ran uncontested. Somehow, I doubt she'll hold her office, come next election. It seems as though everyone is scared of what the black community is going to do. More than 1,000 agents from the D.O.J. are in Sanford, anticipating "unrest" (rioting) after the Zimmerman verdict. Seems they have a very low opinion of the black community, yet hold them in high esteem if someone stands up for themselves against them! I have written extensively on the topic and will make my views known when the time is right. If I can find a law firm to take my case, I want to sue Duval county for discrimination. They charge me with 1st degree murder, denying me bond, while they charged a black man, who shot & killed a white man, under circumstances that were plainly pre-meditated, with 2nd degree. He had prior convictions, to include illegal weapons and domestic violence charges, and was released on $5K bond within 2 weeks of his arrest. That's just one example that we're aware of, I'm sure there are more. I want to put this behind me and get on with my life, but at the same time, I feel I must seek justice for myself and hopefully change the attitude of the courts. It is so sorry how racist everyone is up here, and how biased towards blacks the courts are. The jail is full of blacks and they all act like thugs. I think the legal system is scared of a backlash any time there is a white-on-black incident, but don't get excited when it's black on black, or even black-on-white. This may sound a bit radical, but if more people would arm themselves and kill these fucking idiots when they're threatening you, eventually they may take the hint and change their behavior. As it is, going to jail is like a badge of honor for them. The "juvenile" - young men 15-17 yrs old, all housed right behind me. Armed robbery is the most common offense. I hear them talking - bragging - about shooting people. Boom! Boom! Boom! Eventually, we as a society will wake up and realize that we need to arm ourselves, as the government welfare programs have produced a culture of entitlement for a certain segment of our society. These boys feel entitled to live above the law and do violence at will. Remember when your mom was robbed? At gunpoint? Black this. Ok, I'm off my soapbox now. Whew! So what's this about you and [redacted] wanting to rent your own place? I thought [redacted] was engaged to the guy she's been staying with. I assume you're living there as well. [redacted] took the 3rd floor as the 1st is too noisy for her, she hates inconsiderate people, so she doesn't like people above her. She's always considerate and gets after me if I stomp around. [redacted] made friends with someone who trains dogs. He stopped by to work with Charlie, our French Bulldog. He said Charlie is very handsome and smart. He mastered sit, stay and lay down right away, we're still working with him on walking on

The Leash. He tends to walk us! I'm curious to know what happened to your car. The next time you speak to your Mom, ask her for me. I wrote her a letter a while ago. I never heard back from her. That asshole neighbor in [REDACTED] called the Sheriff here and said I once put a gun to your mother's head! He made a few more outrageous claims, I think I am going to sue him. Anyway, ask your Mom if she got my letter. Hopefully I'll be able to call her and ask her myself soon! Back to this car thing. Eventually, you're going to buy another car. Until you turn 25, it doesn't make sense to finance a car, as the insurance will run $400/month. I tried to tell your mother this when she was buying [REDACTED] a car, but she wouldn't listen. For now, you need to drive a used car, something that is paid for, so you can buy minimal insurance. In hindsight, we should have looked around some more and found you a used Honda. I wanted to get you a Del Sol, if you will recall. Whatever brand you decide, you MUST get a manual trans. You have enough driving experience now where shifting won't be a big distraction. Besides, shifting is fun! Love,
Dad

Hi [REDACTED]

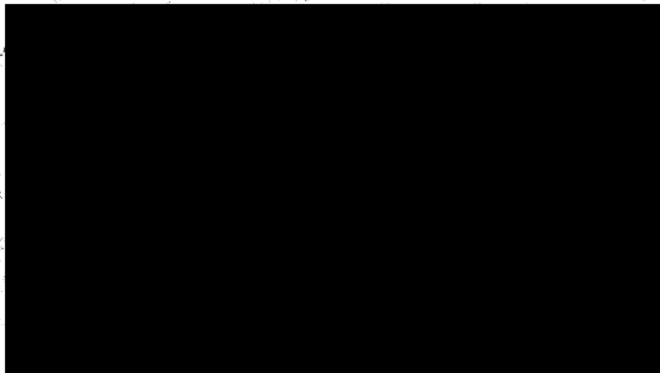

When I spoke to [REDACTED] on Monday, she told me about the new judge and read me an article from the Fox News website. One thing that continues to bother me is that they report the shooting was over loud music. I don't know if you have the time to do it, but I sure would appreciate it if you could somehow set the record straight in the comments area. You've read what happened... supposedly the guy from the front seat admits to turning the music off when I requested they turn it down. I love how the Davis attorney has 'proven' there were ~~no~~ weapons, yet we haven't gone to court yet. They seem very anxious to plant ideas in the press. Would be nice if somebody could counter their lies, as my attorney fails to do so. Sure wish I knew why my ~~court~~ judge bailed out on me. Hope the new judge (4th) is up for it and will be fair. I sure would like to go home and put this behind me.

Love,

FOREVER

Hi Sweetheart!

It's Thursday afternoon as I write this, but I won't be able to mail it until next Wednesday as I need to order more envelopes. For the past few weeks, G-N-R Patience has been going through my head, but my new "ear worm" is George Michael's Faith. Cause you gotta have Faith, Faith, Faith! ☺

I know you're worried about testifying and I want you to know I have complete faith in you. To take the pressure off, please know that what we did afterwards is not important and

Remember, the State has to prove it was not self-defense and they're grasping at straws, as they knew that they didn't search the area where the girls were tossed.

I'm sure Cory will prepare you well. If you feel as though you will be too anxious, maybe take a small valium. ☺ I know you'll do great and you're so beautiful, you'll probably get some offers from Hollywood by the time we get back home! Between everything that was said at the last hearing and our new testimonies, I have every confidence that the judge will grant the bond. Faith, Faith, Faith! Cousin [redacted] wrote and asked about you. She liked, felt this must be rough on you and I think she was sympathetic. She also said

I bet if we can pull through this, it will make us even stronger. I think I need to tell you that I'm a "go with the flow" type. I always figure that something will come along, and I usually lose. I want you to know that I want to stop planning for our future, as I am certain
I want to spend the rest of my life with you.
and I don't have much of a future if I'm stuck in jail, so my first goal is to get out!
How's that for a plan? Faith, Faith, Faith!
I'm somewhat sad for [redacted] but it underscores just how rare a thing we have found in each other. I love you very much and I'm sorry you have to go through this with me. Thank you for being in my corner. I don't know what I would have done without you. Keep your head up and know that I will be home soon.
Give our Charlie a hug for me and tell him you a smooch from me back.

I Love You!

From a Stone Baunton novel:

Risotto Recipe

Combine some butter and olive oil in a pan

- Add 12 ounces of Arborio rice, some salt, and the zest of a lemon; sauté until the rice turns golden.
- Start adding small cupfuls of hot chicken stock, stirring until each addition is absorbed before adding the next, continue until whole carton has been absorbed.
- Then stir in the zest of another lemon, a couple of fistfuls of
- Parmigiano-Reggiano, and half a carton of crème fraîche. Serve with veal chops.

Hi Baby!

I'm sorry that you're having money trouble. I was thinking about it and I had an idea. In the unlikely event that I don't get to come home on the 10th, I'm going to ask Corg to have the judge release my car. You can mail me the title and I will sign it, then you can sell it. You should be able to get $8,000 for it. That should keep you going for a bit and I will come home for sure after the trial. This is a plan for worst-case, and I feel good about the bond hearing, but wanted you to know I have a plan - just in case! I want to take care of you as best I can and I feel awful that you're having to worry about money because of me. We'll make it through this and I'll work real hard to make sure you never have to worry again. We'll make it through this I promise! Faith! Faith! Faith!

Hi Sweetheart!

It is Friday night and I am sitting here thinking to myself how sweet you are. I know exactly how you feel. You and I are both very generous, but for some reason we don't expect generosity from others. You're always generous with food, (e.g. I find it difficult to eat other people's food. Like when [redacted] had that party, for example. I'm not sure when I'm like that but I've noticed you are too. Something I hope you realize now is that you are not the 'flavor of the week' casual girlfriend. You're my fiancee and I intend on making you my wife! Mom & Dad know this and have remarked on numerous occasions how much they like you and how good you will be for me. Rest easy knowing you're not on your own. We're not on our own. I am very confident that I'll be returning home soon, and I will be able to contribute to the household. Who knows, maybe I'll be able to do that Jimmy Buffet tour in Oct.! No promise on that, but it's a nice goal. As always, I think of you constantly and live for the time we're back together where we belong.

Good Morning Baby!

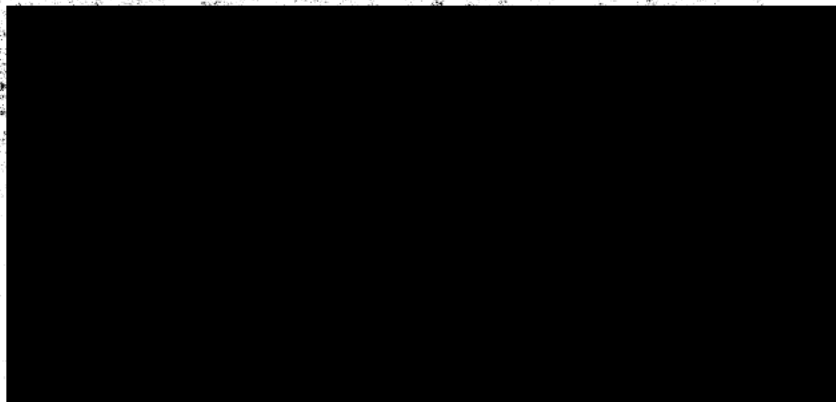

Ok, so time is officially crawling by. Not that it had been flying by, but now it is passing so slowly, I can't help but be convinced that I will be going home soon. The anticipation is excruciating!

They took my shaving razor when they did the last "shave-down". I swear, there's no consistency here! The last few times, they left my razor, but took my extra socks and tore down the noise barriers I put up. This time they left the noise barrier, socks and the extra towel I use as a pillowcase. I was breaking out on my neck from sleeping against the rubber pillow. I was so glad they didn't take the extra towel, it almost made up for them "stealing" my razor. I need a shave today (Sunday) but will have to wait until Tuesday when my commissary order arrives. Since I will be going home next week, this will be the last time I buy a single-blade razor! 😊 I am really much looking forward to seeing you soon and can't wait to hold you in my arms again. You're always in my dreams and I think about you throughout the day. Thanks for helping me through this - I could not have done it alone. Love,

SERVED

Hi Cousin!

I have to say, I really enjoyed reading your letter! Rambling is fine, no structure is required!

As I'm sure you've heard by now, I have a new, new judge. This will be the 4th, as my original judge retired before I was assigned to judge BIAS. Now that I have a judge with balls (haha), maybe the court will finally stand up to this crazy D.A. they have out here - I spoke to Matt this morning and he said some "Citizen grand jury" has indicted Ms Angela Corey (the crazy DA) on charges of falsifying Zimmerman's arrest warrant.

Not sure what that's all about, but if you've been following that debacle, it's eerily similar to my case. I'll make sure Mom sends you that account of the events. Something we learned during "Discovery" is that the man in the SUV drove away, parked, exited the vehicle, a 911 caller saw this and called it in. Then they drove back and they had never left. The police never searched the area where they had been and phone records show 6-8 calls to different #'s, all short duration. Like they were calling their buddies to come get the guns they stole! This is information the prosecution provides... Makes you wonder what the agenda is, cause they have no hope of a guilty verdict.

Loved your diagram depicting the ophrectomy!
I've heard him say that before, but never have I seen it illustrated! Speaking of medical terms, when you get your tonsils taken out, that's called a tonsil-ectomy. When they remove your appendix, that is an appen-dectomy. Do you know the term for when a girl gets a sex-change operation? It's called an Addadick-tomee.
I feel free to use that, and you can stop telling my butt crack jokes. Ha Ha! If you're serious about setting up a phone, ask [redacted] about Google Phone. She can tell you how to set it up, but you get a 904 area code number that rings to your existing phone. If you decide to do that, give [redacted] your # and a good day/time to call. They limit phone calls to 15 minutes. Like you said though, hopefully I'll be home!

I just got off the phone with [redacted]. The new judge is going to hear our motion for a bond on the 16th. If he decides to grant the hearing, he'll do it right then and there! Sounds to me like I'm going home! Speaking of home, you asked how [redacted] is doing. I think she's holding up, but this has been particularly difficult on her. She's been getting counseling, so that's helped somewhat. She's getting settled in her new apartment, though she sits at home, pining away for me...

[REDACTED] stops by the Olive Garden on her way home now and again. Whenever we'd go out, we always preferred to sit at the bar. Anyhow, she's made friends with the bar-tenders there and one of them is an aspiring dog trainer. He wants to start a business like an obedience school or something. Our French Bulldog (Charlie) was six months old when I got locked up. I had been working with him, but we hadn't gotten very far. The trainer came over to work with him and said he's a very handsome and a very smart dog. Sit, stay and lay down were easy; I was more concerned with walking on a leash. He tends to walk up! I'm hoping I won't be on house arrest, as I'd like to walk Charlie around the big lake there at the apartment. Honestly, at this point I'm just looking forward to going home. Thankfully, I can work from home. I just hope I still have a job with H.P.! Not that I got all my legal advice from FOX News, but Mom said Bill O'Reilly was saying that under Florida law, it's the state's burden to prove it was NOT self-defense, rather than the defendant's burden to prove it was. If that's truly the case, then I have to ask again: Why am I here?

Think of it this way: We have an eye witness testimony placing the vehicle, with the occupants excited, in an area unsearched by police. Since we all know that you can't prove a negative, there is no way for the state to meet its burden. The defense rests, your honor! I think I just had a "My Cousin Vinny" moment!
 I'm going to write this down and run it by my attorney! If this theory "holds water" , we'll win a self-defense hearing and not have to go through the ordeal of a trial. I'm going to find a slimy, civil-law lawyer and sue this country for the reverse-discrimination. Get see them televise that trial! Just so you know it's 2:30 AM on 7/4. I woke up with this idea after sleeping on the notion that it's the state's burden to prove it is not self-defense. I had always wondered how WE were going to prove they hid weapons. We have decent evidence to back up our theory, but no solid proof. I feel much better now. This should get interesting!
 Before I go - ask someone who worked on the Osprey if they have heard of the Carter Copter. Comas to know. Have 'o you ^{and} you

Hi Sweetheart!

I spoke to mom tonight. She passed on my "demands" to Cory. In a nutshell, Cory said he will not be representing me if I insist on going to trial 9/23. I wish I had the money to fight this on our terms, but I don't, so I think I'll just shut up about it. I did compose a letter to mom + Dad, proposing we streamline the process. I'm still thinking "worst case" in that I'll be stuck here until my case goes to trial. Same way, somehow, I need to get back into the mindset that I'll be coming home soon, then we can let Cory take as much time as he needs.

I'm reading an author named Stuart Woods. He has a few characters in his series. One guy - Stone Barrington, is a NY attorney. He makes a drink that I think you may enjoy. Called a Vodka Gimlet. Not as strong as a martini, though you drink it from a martini glass. Here is the recipe: 3 parts vodka and 1 part Rose's Sweetened Lime Juice. Take a full fifth of vodka, pour six ounces into another bottle and replace that with the lime juice. Put that bottle in the freezer* and do not serve over ice. Try it and let me know!

Will freeze for a few hours

It's Tuesday night and you won't get this until Friday or Saturday. I'm hoping that you enjoyed your 4th of July celebration, however you spent it. I will be thinking about our first, sitting underneath them (practically). Serendipity has been the watchword with us. Remember what a great time we had in Ft. Lauderdale? A totally unplanned day and we had a great brunch by the beach, then found that intercostal tour with the open bar! If memory serves, we had dinner at Guanabano on the way home. About the only thing planned was to see Pat McHale at the Rindick... Serendipity indeed. I have no doubt that we'll be able to make many more memories together, babe. If I don't come home soon, then I'll be there later. That's a promise - as logic and reasoning will prevail. How can they say there were no guns when they did not search the parking lot where witnesses saw them park and get out? Now that a reasonable doubt will be raised and then we'll get to all the short-duration phone calls that were made, then Davis' history with authority figures. I promise you - we have the truth, evidence and law on our side. Love you!

Q-30

Hi Mom + Dad!

Hope you both are doing well and that you're enjoying your Summer in Utah! Hopefully I've already been released by the time you're reading this, but if not:

Please understand that I'm not trying to make things difficult for Cory. I appreciate everything you both have done for me. I am extremely frustrated and dissatisfied with the progress that has been made on my case so far. I am aware that the fault lies with the courts. Having said that, I really need your understanding and support towards giving Cory some direction. I know Sept 23 is an unrealistic date for trial. However, if I am still incarcerated, spending another six months in here, waiting for Cory to be ready is equally unrealistic. Somehow, we need to streamline this process and be ready for trial sooner rather than later. Even if I am released, I don't care how long it takes. I have some ideas on how to streamline the process, perhaps you do as well. The first item is the frequency of the pre-trial hearings. Once per month is no good. We need to address all of the pre-trial motions, so I suggest Cory make a list and gets them all heard as fast as he can. I'd like to see a motion for a self-defense hearing, too. We know we still need the indigency hearing to pay for depositions and expert witnesses. I propose that, in order to streamline the process, that Cory depose the A-list witnesses only.

I think it is very important to my defense that he gets the experts he's mentioned; ballistics, witness testimony, post traumatic stress and any others he feels are important. In the interest of time, I suggest we forgo deposing any of the B and C list witnesses. My hope is that we can go to trial no later than October, knowing ~~and~~ that would require an aggressive schedule. That's what I'm asking for - an aggressive, streamlined schedule with clearly defined goals. I'd prefer the goals to be written down, so that we all know where an expert on the Thug sub-culture, especially on violence, would be good too.

were at and can keep sight of the objectives. I think the list of motions that Cory suggests should be discussed so that we all understand the reasoning behind them. I would also prefer to take a more active roll in the press. If I am denied a bond ask Cory to put together a statement, outlining what we know regarding the inconsistencies under which the DA's office operates.

Mention how unreliable her witnesses are (3 thugs in SUV) and mention the facts he brought up in the bond hearing: 911 call from witness who saw occupants of SUV exit vehicle and hide things, etc. It would be best, in my opinion, if Cory were able to make this statement to the press. If he's unable or unwilling to, then you two or perhaps [REDACTED] could. I see no reason to fear the DA's office if my bond is denied, and I strongly suspect the mayor's office will not enjoy the negative publicity such a statement would generate. Ultimately, I just want to go home and put this behind me as quickly as we can. I appreciate any input you have towards that goal.

Love,
- Mike

Hello again!

Just got off the phone with you, Mom, as you gave me the news of the new judge. If things progress as they have, we will meet with the judge on the 15th of July, then not again until the middle of August. I can only hope that I'm wrong. I think it is very important that Cory lets the judge know on the 15th all emotions, so that we can get on the calendar. I don't know if we can, but at the rate we're going and the number of outstanding hearings, I won't get to trial until 2015! As we've discussed, the problem is NOT Cory, but the court system as it exists in Duval County. Somehow, we need to stop playing by their rules and stack the deck in my favor for a change. Hopefully this strategizing is for naught, as the new judge will be reasonable. Let's hope so!

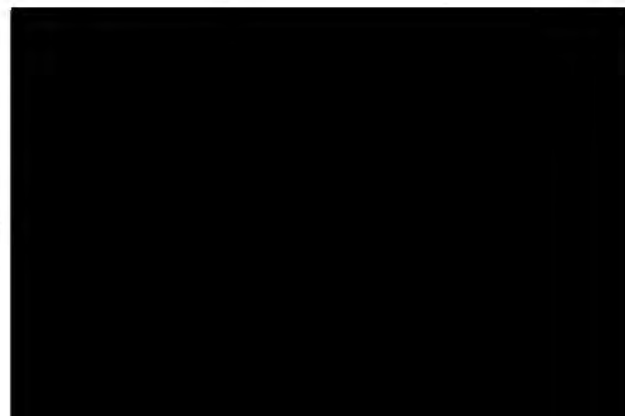

All my love to you both. Thanks for being there for me.

Hi Grandma

Well, I'm sure you've heard by now that I'm still being held, illegally. Our plea of habeas corpus was denied, and no reason was given. We still have 2 options available - we can either appeal the recent chicken-shit decision ~~or~~ by the appellate court to Florida's supreme court or appeal the court's decision to deny bond. We have to get a new judge too - the one I have now is very new and not very bright. I don't know if I should feel like I'm a victim of reverse-discrimination or a political prisoner. Either way, the state of Florida is screwing me over! 😊 I'm hoping this will eventually work out, but somehow I doubt anything will change. The blacks seem to be calling the shots, in the media and the courts. My brother tells me that everytime there is an article in the newspaper, the website has a way for people to leave a comment. He said it is divided by race, those for and against me. The whites who live in Jacksonville know how the blacks behave and the blacks want to protect their own. And of course, the daddy of the thing I had to defend myself against raised an immaculent child who could do no wrong... I'm thinking I will move out of Florida when this is all over with. I don't want to live in a state that plays politics and sucks up to a special interest group at my expense. I'm going to go out of my way to expose them (and the media)

when the time is right. Ok - enough ranting for now. 😊 Thanks again for writing! I enjoy reading your letters - they are always up beat and it's nice to read about normal things. I was getting a newspaper here for a while, but they misrepresent what has been going on with my case so badly, I figure I'll just stick to fiction novels. (And not bother with fiction masquerading as journalism!) Ok - that was a rant, but against the media this time and not the corrupt government!

There is an Eagle's nest on the Intracoastal where we live. They're not there year-round, but I've seen the mamma and some chicks. I wish we had something like that in our back yard - but we do get to watch the dolphins and the occasional whale swim by!

██████ has finally given up hope that I will be released. She's moving out of our townhouse and into a small apartment in town. She says she hates being in the townhouse now, as everything reminds her of me. Poor girl - this has been especially hard on her. At least I won't have to worry about her being able to come up with enough for the rent! We've both been on an emotional roller-coaster since this happened back in November. We were told I'd be out on bail Dec 19, the Jan, Feb, etc. At this point, if I get out on bond - COREAT! But were not holding our collective breaths for it any more... Now we have Sept 23 to look forward to - that's when the trial has been scheduled for. I know that date will slip, but I'll do what I can to make sure it doesn't slip too much! Besides changing judges, we're going to ask for a change of venue. That's the reason I can't be rebutting the press. I can't be shown to be part of the "media circus", as that's the reason for moving this case to a new county. The fear is that we may get a predominantly black jury and therefore, unlikely to get a favorable verdict. Sad, but that's where this country is still at. The good news is that the surrounding counties are predominantly white and republican and supporters of gun rights! Remember that saying: Rather be judged by 12 than carried by 6! However, I don't wish to be pre-judged - and the blacks around here are doing just that. I'm falling into the same trap - pre-judging the blacks - but they're making it ~~very~~ easy to do by their actions.

~~_____~~ and I have discussed moving to Colorado after the trial and my release. We won't be too far from you in Texas, though Texas is so darn big! If we do move to CO, it will be to Colorado Springs, as she has a daughter + a granddaughter living there. ~~_____~~ + I spent Christmas with them a few yrs ago. We took the cog railway up to Pike's Peak - Way cool! Took a while to catch my breath there - and everyone seems so healthy. They spend more time outdoors than we do in Florida. Not looking forward to shoveling though! Hopefully we'll have a neighbor as nice as you.

I don't know if I mentioned my latest 'neighbor' to you. This one talks through the air vent to the juveniles (15-17 yr old murderers + thieves) and says: "Whas up my niggah?" It's hard to understand him as it sounds like he has marbles in his mouth. I finally got to see him the other day when I went to court - he has 2 tear drops tattooed under an eye. From a documentary on gang violence, that's supposed to mean he's killed 2 people. Of course, he could just be a 'poser'. I've overheard him talking - He said he's from Atlanta and was bragging on how much more serious the thugs from Atlanta are... The guy I defended myself against was from Atlanta... He was 17, living with Mom and she sent him to Jacksonville to live with Dad. Not sure if the 'Special' school was in Atlanta or Jax, but supposedly he went to a school for troubled youths. From what little I've interacted with the Dad, I can imagine some of that hate was home-grown. You asked about a first meal request after I'm released. I dreamed about a filet mignon + lobster tail, but I would settle for Chinese takeout! Seriously - the food here sucks! Mom + Dad are helping me out and putting money in my commissary account. I try and stay away from sweets, though I do get a bag of hard-candy. I try to get things with protein like summer sausage and jerky. I'm exercising in my cell, but with no weights, I'm limited in which muscles I can work.

I took the time to read those bible passages you mentioned. I will renew my effort to finish reading the bible. The New Testament is probably an easier read than the Old was. 😊 I don't remember the book and verse, but there was a passage that talked about punishing people who lied about a murder, just as if they committed it. I liked that when I read it and thought about the 3 thugs in the SUV who are telling stories! Heh! I just overheard my neighbor calling to the juveniles through the vent. He refers to one guy as 'Thug Lite' (Light). All I can say is Wow - what a rotten culture.

I hope your trek to S.D. was nice. Hope [redacted] mom had a happy birthday! I don't get to see T.V. or listen to the radio. I am in a cell all by myself and keep sane by reading. I have a deck of playing cards and amuse myself by playing solitaire and 3-handed black jack. I never lose, as I am the 'house' too! 😊 I sure am looking forward to getting out of here and breathing that fresh air. I want get to go back and live by the seaside, so I am sad for that. I won't complain though - I sure I'll be happy wherever I end up, so long as [redacted] + I are still together. Not sure I would be holding up so well if it wasn't for her. Of course, the love and support from all the family helps too. So thank you!

Love,

- Mike

Hi Michelle!

How are you and your Family doing? Not much is going on with me. I'm still here in Hugville. Not sure if Mom has been keeping you up to date, but so far, the judge has denied my bond, the appeals court has upheld her decision (without giving any reason), and now the same judge has denied my indigent prisoner status, even though I qualify. I don't know what is going on and I am very worried about getting a fair trial. We've put forth a motion for the judge to recuse herself, the thinking is that a new judge will not be as prejudiced as the current judge, and I'll have another shot at getting a bond and, just as importantly, the indigent status to help fund my defense. I don't have all the details, but an incident in Jacksonville was brought to my attention. There was a confrontation of sorts at the same gas station where mine was. Black guy + a white guy. Black guy pulled away from gas pumps into a parking space, waiting for other vehicle to leave. He followed other guy to a nearby intersection where they were both stopped at a red light. Black guy got out of his vehicle, shot + killed white man, then drove away. He supposedly removed his license plates and tried to get new ones issued. After the police caught up to him and arrested him, he's charged with 2nd degree murder and out on $20k bond. He had a prior criminal record, to include domestic violence and illegal weapons charges. This is but one example of the reverse discrimination that appears to be rampant in the South. Even though Jacksonville is in the Northern part of the state, it is more "Southern" here than it is in central or South Florida. I've never been exposed to thugs like they have here. The jail is chock-full of blacks and they all appear to be thugs, along the lines of 90% of the inmates. Mom and I were talking the other day about living in an apartment, as [REDACTED] has had to move out of our townhouse on the beach into an apt. in town. Mom recalled an apartment she lived in in Key West, where a neighbor was playing music a stereo loudly. When she knocked on his door to complain, he was apologetic and somewhat embarrassed. I said that it never occurred to me that asking the parked car next to me to turn their music down would lead to a confrontation, let alone a deadly one. I've never had to deal with people like this - ever. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] I don't know if you're interested, but the video-taped interview I gave the "detectives" is on the "Net" somewhere. [REDACTED] also has a written account from me that Mom can forward. Write to me when you can. I promise not to reply with any more unsolicited advice! 😊 I'm sitting here, stewing in my own juices - waiting for my day in court and plotting my revenge against the system for all the civil rights violations. 😊

Love to You + Yours! - Mike

Hi Grandma!

Thank you again for writing and the words of encouragement! I can't help but to believe this will turn out in my favor too... Thankfully it will not be left up to my very biased and inexperienced judge. With any luck, I will get a new judge and hopefully a re-hearing for bond. That, and another hearing so that the state will foot the bill for all the costs! Things are progressing too slowly for my taste, but I know everyone is doing all they can within the system. They sure don't seem to follow the rules here in Jacksonville, then again, I doubt any other county would have arrested me to begin with!

 + I have decided that she shouldn't keep waiting for me at the townhouse. It's too much rent for her to manage on her own and she says there are too many memories for her to be happy there. I had expected to be home, possibly under 'house arrest' and wanted to be there. If we had only known the government was going to play these games, she would have moved to a smaller place in January.

They sure have made a mess of things. I'm going to take them to task and sue the pants off of them once the trial is over. Not that I'm bitter or anything... 😊

Have I mentioned recently how much I dislike our government? I'd like to think it's just local politics, but something tells me this corruption is very wide spread. So sad in this day and age we're still divided by race.

It was very interesting to read about [redacted] horse clinic. While I don't share his enthusiasm for horses (they scare me!), I think it's great that they share a common interest that they love. He has such a great facility there, it's awesome that they open it up to fellow horse-lovers (equestrians?). When [redacted] and I came up for Grandpa's service, [redacted] had leading that big horse of his around, [redacted] and telling her what a gentle touch she had. She was in heaven when she got to ride him. I wasn't worried about her safety for a moment, [redacted] is so confidence-inpiring. He really showed us how much patience he has an abundance of.

I'm keeping up with Mom's post knee surgery progress too. I'm amazed at her speedy recovery and progress to date.

Dad is [redacted] but for me now. He and Mom have written to my Congressman, and they've drafted up another to send to Governor Scott. With all the shenanigans take get

I'm sure [redacted] would like to help hateful place and I'm struggling as best I can. Your letters give me a lot of strength to carry on. My love to [redacted] and all the kids!

Dear [REDACTED]

I hope you and [REDACTED] have received my previous letters by now. As you have indicated that [REDACTED] reads the letters I write to you, I hope you had a chance to read what I wrote to her! I'm not sure if she needed to hear it from me, or anybody - but I mentioned to her some things I've picked up over the years. I'm reading your latest letter and I think I understand what you're going through. You're trying to find yourself - trying to find your place in society. This anxiousness is normal and common. I've met quite a few people with a degree in one field, who work in a different, unrelated field. It's hard to know what you want to do the rest of your life when you're just starting out. Regarding your Mom - give this a try if you haven't already. Write it down. Compose your thoughts on the computer - get all your thoughts in order and then give it to her and let her read it in private, then approach her about it later. Your Mom never faced her fears until she had to. When we lived in GA, I begged her to take English classes. She got along fine without knowing to speak or read it, so she couldn't be bothered. Even though she wasn't working and had the time and the classes were free. She Did take the classes when we moved to FL - she couldn't get by without it anymore. While she was working and had to pay... I wanted her to go to school and get a degree or a certificate in something - so she could work with her brain and pulling the work load →

not with her back. She has her reasons, she never did follow through with that. I'm glad you have forgiven me for my mistakes. I wish I would have done a better job. I wish your Mom + I could have done a better job. We both needed to be 'pulling', but not in opposite directions. You two were caught in the crossfire and it wasn't fair to either of you. I'm sorry, as I'm sure your Mother is too! Counting butterflies! Ha ha! Well, it was an observation. You didn't appear to be 'in the moment', as it were. A day dreamer, for sure. That's not a bad thing, if you do something with it. I saw your grades - knowing you could do better - and called you out on it. Daydream all you want - After you've learned the lesson. I spent plenty of time in the classroom looking outside at the squirrels play. But - I had already read ahead and understood what the teacher was droning on and on about. Don't let reality be scary. I mean, it is scary when you have to make a judgement call, but make them using every bit of wisdom you possess. Don't just drift through your life without direction. That's the main reason I've been encouraging you to follow a certain path in college - to give you some direction! I know plenty of Math majors who are now computer programmers and plenty of Comp. Sci majors who are in business positions. I don't know any dance majors, doing anything, so I wouldn't know to guide you in that direction. I think you'd be 'pigeon holed' and would not have as many opportunities as you would

With a more traditional degree. Let me tell you something... I'm not rich or famous, and I always struggled financially until I got my 2nd job. Struggling takes away from happiness - as you're not free to do as you please. Financial Freedom is the term. While not rich - [REDACTED] I was free to do as we pleased - and we were both very happy. I'm really hoping - praying to be able to go back to that lifestyle. We'll still be happy, just being together - but still. Having said all that - you Must think of financial reward as you contemplate your career path. A career is more than a job - it defines you. You can change your career, like I said - Math majors become programmers when they get bored with teaching, etc. So the career path you choose is not a 'life sentence' (pardon the reference!) It just makes sense to me to try and pick a major that will give you the most leeway and biggest scope. All the things you mention that you want to do sound great! Find someone who's already rich and hopefully they will share your dreams and indulge you. Or - you could choose a well paying career - work hard while you're young - and do those things later in life. Some people work for the same place for 20 yrs, then retire - they get a pension as part of their benefits. That's not nearly as common as it used to be. If you had a pension - you could work part-time and have enough money to live on AND do those other nice things. It all depends on what kind of lifestyle you want to have.

Couple of things: If you need $ for school, instead of hanging out, working minimum-wage, I suggest you apply for a student loan. Don't piss the money away like [redacted] did. In fact. Since I am such a poor example on managing money- I suggest you take a class in money management! IF you DO want to work for Dunn & Dunn, things have changed. We don't have enough business to pay you to do nothing. What we DO need is someone who knows how to sell - to sign up - people to use our credit card services. To that end - I suggest you get hired by a company in Orlando that does this. Let them train you. Work there for 6 months and learn as much about it as you can. Then, you can come to work for Dunn & Dunn, bringing your newfound expertise with you. In a short amount of time, we'd be able to hire others and you'd be in a supervisory role. This looks real good on a resume - so even if you didn't want to make a career in Sales for D & D, you would have many doors opened, due to your experience. Sound familiar? If you don't finish school and get your degree - this is a good plan. In fact - I wish you & Christopher would get together, encouraging each other, and do this. He could find a place in Jacksonville to get his training on what to do. Once you both are all trained up - you could live in any city, as the business model is not tied to Vero Beach. Even cities in [redacted] - though you know how I feel about [redacted] influence on you!

I'm sure you've heard me say this term before:

Neural Linguistics. That's where you say out loud what you want. Right now, my immediate 'want' is to go home! I do have a 5-yr plan though.

Here it is: Today is 1/20 - the state will turn over its Discovery to my attorney. Cory will find that the investigation was sloppy. Very soon, we will request a bond hearing. Sometime during the month of Feb - we will have the bond hearing and the judge will grant me a bond which we can afford. I will return home to Melbourne. I will immediately resume my work with H.P. & will soon thereafter resume my work with Xerox. The trial will be in 12-18 months from now - I will be acquitted or found Not Guilty. After the trial, I will bring a lawsuit against the state.

They will settle and I will use a portion of that settlement for a down payment on a modest house for [REDACTED] & I. I will use the bulk of the settlement proceeds by investing in Duant Dunn. With the rebounding economy, business will be booming and I will use my share of the profits to buy or build our dream house on the river. This will be a 2-story house constructed in a manner where I can park a seaplane underneath and then take off or land on the river. That's my 5-yr plan.

Though right now, as I said - I'm concentrating my Neural Linguistic efforts on getting the bond!

What's your plan? Think about it and let me know!

Love,
Dad.

U.S. MAIL

32202-2686 0023

Sorry that I've been awful about writing. We usually talk and whatever is on my mind I get out. I know I've been slacking so here is some fun stuff to read.

Home life is going well. Enjoying the new cars. [REDACTED] is doing well at her new job. The DON (Director of Nursing) is in love with [REDACTED]. She's going to retire in 3 years and would like to train [REDACTED] to take over her job. The ADON (assistant director of nursing) is retiring in 2 years and at that point [REDACTED] will be promoted to ADON. Pretty exciting stuff for her. ADON pays about $90k a year and a DON gets paid around $120k. Even more interesting is that the company she works for is nation wide, and yes they have a beautiful location in Colorado Springs. Just throwing that out there! We're going to try to pay a little extra on the house over the rest of the year. Our hopes is to either pay it down to refinance it and rent it out, then move to PSL for the next couple of years or just sell the house and move to PSL until we're ready to move to Colorado. We probably won't make the trip to Colorado for another few years. Would be nice for [REDACTED] to get her DON job here, be there for a year or so then think about moving out west. The other thing she's looking at is teaching a class for others to get their C.N.A. (certified nursing assistant) license. As an RN, you can teach up to 20 people for a C.N.A. License. The class runs two weeks and the going rate is anywhere between $800-$1000 for the class. I'd love to figure out how to make the office work for both DDDS and her class if at all possible. Lots of good stuff going on, just a matter of picking a direction and running with it.

I've started studying to get my A+ certification. Figure I should do that along with a networking certification and whatever else I see that interests me. I don't see DDDS going out of business anytime soon and hopefully never but I don't want to be left standing with a bag of poop in my hand and no real future for work. If I can get enough certs to make $50k plus a year, we'll be good. If all is smooth sailing for the next 3-4 years, what I end up doing for work won't really matter. I keep going back and forth if I even want to work in IT anymore. I'd like a good paying job but I'd much rather do some form of manual labor. Driving a UPS truck seems like it would be a blast. I would rather sweat all day at work. I will probably feel different after spending a summer outside.

Credit card stuff has stalled out. It's a bit too hot to go around door to door at the moment so I'm going to work on cold calling stores or maybe just dropping off a brochure and telling the RATE REVIEW! DO IT! People don't seem to want to talk to someone about credit card rates unless they already talk to you about something else. If you're buying stuff, they're more likely to talk. Just walking in and asking to speak with the manager has been an epic failure. It's getting easier to do but I still feel like I'm awful at it. I fumble all over my words and I'm just nervous in general I guess. I'm not a people person, not in a sales sense. I'm great if you're coming to me and need/want something. I'm awful at cold calling on people. I don't like to be bothered by those kind of people and hate knowing that I'm doing the same.

Kids are doing well. We'll probably talk about why they were pulled out of daycare on the call today. We're looking for a new place to put them. [REDACTED] is growing lots. Hard to believe she is 3 months old already. Can't wait for you to see her. She's so adorable. [REDACTED] is growing lots too. He's learning more and more each day. I've taught him to roll on his back and kick towards the side of the pool. We try to go to the pool every other day. He has so much fun when we go. I've been watching the kids the past couple of days until we found a new daycare. [REDACTED] was a little surprised at my daycare skills. She came home, the house was had been picked up, dinner was almost done, [REDACTED] was enjoying a cartoon and [REDACTED] was jumping in her bouncer. [REDACTED] couldn't believe how peaceful the house was. What made it so funny was the day before, she got home earlier than me and the house was a mess and the kids were whining, everything was just a mess. She wants to know how I manage to get things done with the kids home.

Ok so enough filler, on to the real news. Thought of you yesterday after all of this and said man Mike would probably really enjoy this article and the talk back section.

The We Are Watching You Act, proposed by Democratic Massachusetts Rep. Michael Capuano and Republican North Carolina Rep. Walter Jones, will keep corporations from using digital video recorders (DVRs) to collect and share your personal information.

If the bill passes, this will most immediately affect production of the next-generation Xbox, Xbox Kinect, Polygon reports. The bill would require the consumer to provide prior consent before information is collected, and the operator of the technology would have to provide access to how the data is collected, said a press release on the House's website.

Infrared cameras and microphones installed in the DVRs would be used to collect the surveillance information. If not given a consumer's permission to be filmed, the companies would be forced to offer another option that does not film their consumers but that is "otherwise identical in all aspects."

If a consumer does allow the information to be collected, a bright red message that reads "WE ARE WATCHING YOU" must be flashed across the screen at all times while recording.

The House's press release explains the tech companies' interest in this technology: Essentially, they want to better and more quickly figure out what to sell you- a way to "super-target ads," Capuano said. "If someone is watching a favorite program while cleaning the kitchen, ads for products that will make appliances shine may show up. If a couple is talking about where to dine over the weekend, or enjoying a crunchy snack while watching the Stanley Cup finals, their television may serve up food suggestions. The patent application even goes so far as to suggest that if a couple is fighting, an advertisement associated with relationship counseling might be selected for them," it said.

Jones and Capuano both offered quotes in their press release.

In light of the government's "unfortunate history of secretly collecting private citizens' information from technology providers", we must ensure that safeguards are in place to protect Americans' rights," Jones said.

Capuano stressed that though "this may sound preposterous," it is "neither a joke nor an exaggeration," and urged consumers to consider the impact this sort of information-sharing will have on their personal lives.

"Think about what you do in the privacy of your own home and then think about how you would feel sharing that information with your cable company, their advertisers and your government."

The press release concluded with the message that this is a matter of awareness, and having a choice in the matter.

"At a minimum, consumers should have the option of saying no to being watched."

My take?

I found it interesting. At first I thought it was another over reach of government then I looked at the DirecTV DVR box and re-read the article. I realized this wasn't written specifically for the Xbox One. This was written and aimed at Cable companies with DVR's. I had already read the comments section at this point and most of the comments were along the lines of....

"Better solution, don't buy an Xbox. There is no need for a law."

"oh man, this is so over the top"

Then the post I replied to...

"Microsoft and other companies will make it all-or-none. Either you enable the camera to transmit back to the home office, or you don't use the camera for anything. I still don't see the need for a federal law. If you don't want to be surveilled, don't buy an Xbox. Sony or Nintendo will come out with a competitive product that is not so intrusive. Free market win."

My Reply

I too thought this until I looked at my cable box. What if cable companies decided to do this? We're very limited in what cable companies you can use. Without any oversight and very little effort, the cable companies could work together and push that out. Most people will do without a gaming consoles, how many would actually say no to cable?

Someone else replying to me

You must admit though, the principle is the exact same no matter how much you want the product.

My Reply back

While I do agree the federal government should be very limited in its interference with anything, this is not one of those cases. The government has a job of protecting your right to privacy. It is one of the few things the government is supposed to do. I have no problem with the government telling corporations that they can not punish us if we don't allow them to spy on us.

The same guy replying back to me

The government has no such duty to protect your right of privacy in voluntary transactions between private citizens/entities. You have no more right to an xbox without a camera than a right to vegetables without genetically modified organisms. Nor do you have a right to cable. And what if you did? Take it to the logical conclusion, what other freely produced/purchased items would you then have the right to force (by the State, legislature) producers to make according to your whim? I don't like being spied on, so I won't buy the product. That's where the analysis stops.

My reply back

It does when it is the one using said corporations to spy on the citizens. Cable companies are also not entirely private entities. They are highly subsidized by big government. If they were truly private entities many non-spying ones would pop up as soon all the major ones started spying. Every home would have a choice of 2 or more cable providers but that isn't the case for most people.

I don't eat GMO's but would agree the government has no right to make companies label GMO products. Free Market works just fine because non-GMO foods make sure it is written all over. As a consumer you're left with many choices.

Cable companies are completely different. It's about the control of information. If cable companies tomorrow could tell you that you either put in a camera or they stop providing you

TV/Internet access, you're at a serious disadvantage in life. With the way things are going, that isn't completely far-fetched.

In a truly free society we wouldn't need this, but that's not where we are in history.

His Final Reply back to me.

Fair point that cable is a pseudo-governmental entity, and a monopoly such as cable has only exists through State action. So maybe it is a different analysis with cable. But that is one of a very few industries where that is the case. (Thankfully)

It was an interesting back and forth. I think I would actually argue that even in a case like the Xbox One, as a consumer you should have the option of buying that hardware without the spy cam on it. I think at some point, a conversation has to take place about the true role of the constitution and the federal government. I'm one of those that believes the federal governments job is to protect the bill of rights. Sometimes the few need to be protected from the masses when it comes to the bill of rights. If 80% of the population decided tomorrow that they don't care about their right to privacy and every company out there started to put a camera, microphone, and internet connection on their devices then required you to have those parts operational in order to use the device, what happens to the 20% of people that don't want their privacy stolen from them? I'm talking about a stove, a microwave, a refrigerator, your cable box, your AC unit. This seems far fetched for now, but 20-30 years from now, I don't know that it will be as far fetched. I completely understand that in a truly free republic, this would never happen. But that's not what we have. We have a society filled with idiots that don't care about any of their rights and will give them up for the latest gadget and a government that is loving their new abilities to spy on the people. I think people need to be cautious when it comes to the kind of legislation. As I pointed out earlier in my replies, I don't think foods that contain GMO's should have to be labeled. I'm more concerned about a person's right to privacy in their home.

Federal Nullification efforts mounting in states....

Imagine the scenario: A federal agent attempts to arrest someone for illegally selling a machine gun. Instead, the federal agent is arrested — charged in a state court with the crime of enforcing federal gun laws. Farfetched? Not as much as you might think.

The scenario would become conceivable if legislation passed by Missouri's Republican-led Legislature is signed into law by Democratic Gov. Jay Nixon.

The Missouri legislation is perhaps the most extreme example of a states' rights movement that has been spreading across the nation. States are increasingly adopting laws that purport to nullify federal laws — setting up intentional legal conflicts, directing local police not to enforce federal laws and, in rare cases, even threatening criminal charges for federal agents who dare to do their jobs.

An Associated Press analysis found that about four-fifths of the states now have enacted local laws that directly reject or ignore federal laws on marijuana use, gun control, health insurance requirements and identification standards for driver's licenses. The trend began in Democratic leaning California with a 1996 medical marijuana law and has proliferated lately in Republican strongholds like Kansas, where Gov. Sam Brownback this spring became the first to sign a measure threatening felony charges against federal agents who enforce certain firearms laws in his state.

Some states, such as Montana and Arizona, have said "no" to the feds again and again — passing states' rights measures on all four subjects examined by the AP — despite questions about whether their "no" carries any legal significance.

"It seems that there has been an uptick in nullification efforts from both the left and the right," said Adam Winkler, a professor at the University of California at Los Angeles who specializes in constitutional law.

Yet "the law is clear — the supremacy clause (of the U.S. Constitution) says specifically that the federal laws are supreme over contrary state laws, even if the state doesn't like those laws," Winkler added.

The fact that U.S. courts have repeatedly upheld federal laws over conflicting state ones hasn't stopped some states from flouting those federal laws — sometimes successfully.

About 20 states now have medical marijuana laws allowing people to use pot to treat chronic pain and other ailments — despite a federal law that still criminalizes marijuana distribution and possession. Ceding ground to the states, President Barack Obama's administration has made it known to federal prosecutors that it wasn't worth their time to target those people.

Federal authorities have repeatedly delayed implementation of the 2005 Real ID Act, an anti-terrorism law that set stringent requirements for photo identification cards to be used to board commercial flights or enter federal buildings. The law has been stymied, in part, because about half the state legislatures have opposed its implementation, according to the National Conference of State Legislatures.

About 20 states have enacted measures challenging Obama's 2010 health care laws, many of which specifically reject the provision mandating that most people have health insurance or face tax penalties beginning in 2014.

After Montana passed a 2009 law declaring that federal firearms regulations don't apply to guns made and kept in that state, eight other states have enacted similar laws.

The Supreme Court ruled in 1997 that local police could not be compelled to carry out provisions of a federal gun control law. But some states are now attempting to take that a step further by asserting that certain federal laws can't even be enforced by federal authorities.

A new Kansas law makes it a felony for a federal agent to attempt to enforce laws on guns made and owned in Kansas. A similar Wyoming law, passed in 2010, made it a misdemeanor. The Missouri bill also would declare it a misdemeanor crime but would apply more broadly to all federal gun laws and regulations — past, present, or future — that "infringe on the people's right to keep and bear arms."

U.S. Attorney General Eric Holder sent a letter in late April to the Kansas governor warning that the federal government is willing to go to court over the new law. "Kansas may not prevent federal employees and officials from carrying out their official responsibilities," Holder wrote.

So what would happen if a local prosecutor actually charges a federal agent for doing his or her job?

"They're going to have problems if they do it — there's no doubt about it," said Michael Boldin, executive director of the Tenth Amendment Center, a Los Angeles-based entity that promotes states' rights. "There's no federal court in the country that's going to say that a state can pull this off."

Yet states may never need to prosecute federal agents in order to make their point. If enough states resist, "it's going to be very difficult for the federal government to force their laws down our throats," Boldin said.

Missouri's governor has not said whether he will sign or veto the bill nullifying federal gun laws. Meanwhile, thousands of people have sent online messages to the governor's office about the legislation.

Signing the measure "will show other states how to resist the tyranny of federal bureaucrats who want to rob you of your right to self-defense," said one message, signed by Jim and Arlena Sowash, who own a gun shop in rural Stover, Mo.

My Take?

About dang time! People need to realize that the federal government does not have our best interest in mind. If we can't take our country back with elections, maybe we can take parts back with nullification efforts. Score 1 for freedom!

Dear Mr. Dunn,

6/26/13

Greetings, I am a 29 year old, recently married New Jersey resident. I wanted to tell you that it is a shame how the media, and law have treated you, and you obviously seem like a decent man. How do the guards treat you inside? I hope well, when things look bleak remember what Woody Allen said "If you want to make God laugh predict the future." I know my own life has turned around 180° since I met my wife last summer.

I do hope this letter finds you well. Feel free to write me back at any time, I will not ask you any questions about your case.

All the best,

up!!

Hi Mike -

I was very glad to get your letter and kicking myself daily for not getting correspondence to you much more regularly. Fact is, I have held off because have been in quite a funk and don't think it's right of me to burden my lot when I think of you and your situation. It's so not fair. It really sucks. And I hate that I feel helpless about being able to make a difference meaning that I can't help you. And this world/legal system is so screwed up. Our country (and culture) is such a mess. So I'm sorry if this letter may not be much of a mood-lifter for you - but am frustrated about life on several levels. And again after all that I feel like a heel for complaining.

Sorry - going in circles. Which this letter may continue to do! I figure it's better though to write to you in a random fashion than not write at all? Hope you agree - so bear with me! :)

At the moment, am on a plane coming from 2 day stint at Boeing's facility in Harbour Pointe, WA (out of Seattle) and heading home. Wow. do I miss my kids!! Not quite sure how I got to be 43, working/living in California (ick). 3 little kids that I love more than anything, yet they are the ones I spend the least time with. My nanny gets to see them more than I. And she's not exactly the role model -

Ok - she's definitely NOT a good role model - but has been a major convenience for us. We do plan on putting them all in daycare in the next few months - but it will be a major shock to our daily routine - getting them all up, fed, dressed, lunches packed, hair combed / whatever, loaded in truck and down the road is a lot of work. Daycare is also going to cost another $400-600/month too. Way too expensive, but they are such sponges right now - really need to get them out of the house in a more active / dynamic + educational environment ~~to~~ than with ESL nanny who takes them to same little park every day and cooks them - or should I say, makes them, ^{cooking} lunches (pretty much the same processed and standard fare).

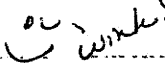

Anyhow - it's not like the kids don't like her - they do. And she picks up after them + does laundry, vacuuming, etc. (that's part of the convenience factor) but [redacted] is 4 1/2 and doesn't know letters / numbers yet - or at least not very well. Fortunately, he doesn't start kindergarten until fall of 2014 so we're putting him back into a Montessori. At least [redacted] and I can generally agree on things for the kids welfare (!) Most other stuff we are on different planets. Not as close as Mars / Venus either. I'd say he's on Pluto or Uranus!! We don't see eye to eye on the future and direction we want to go... actually, I can barely get him to talk about planning ahead. He's just struggling to make it through the day/week - not a happy or collaborative type at all. Hate to say, but I really made a bad pick. He's not going to be my life partner as far as I can see. It's been a real disappointment and I feel like I really got sold a false bill of goods. Then I look back on the several other relationships I've been in and know there's got to be something I am not doing right. I haven't been in a relationship where I've been happy for more than... maybe 2-3 years (?) Guess I'm not easy to please - though feel like I always give 100%+ but just don't get back the same. Eventually, become resentful, start to distance myself, and with [REDACTED] don't even like him anymore... then it's easier to leave/move on after that. Only now I have 3 kids. And he's a pretty good Dad - as far as taking care of their needs; just not sure he'll set a good example as far as how I'd like my kids to learn to interact with others, plan ahead for their lives, and how they'll be in a relationship. We're definitely not setting an example of a loving couple so I wonder about the impact of divorce will be offset (maybe? if I did find somebody else later on down the road. Depressing? And did that really have to all be in one paragraph?!) (1) Now this is one of those things I probably shouldn't be complaining to you about, but is something that probably helps you understand / know me better!

New paragraph!! We just flew over Lake Tahoe and it was a vibrant blue against brown and white mountains. Beautiful! I've never been there (yet!) and imagine going on a ski trip vacation someday - maybe the kids will like to ski(?) or it will be with someone I enjoy traveling with.  at some point in the future. No hurry to make any rash decisions / moves.

The work trip to Seattle was OK. We finally got kicked off on more of the components we will develop for the KC-46A program. We have 11 now out of our Irvine office, and a couple more out of Grand Rapids, MI. I've got 6 components, and have been on the program the longest, so have been getting a lot of face time (too much!) with senior execs on both sides, as the schedule is now really critical. They are starting to build these planes, yet have just recently kicked off some of these development programs.

LOL - the ladies next to me are commenting on that I am hand-writing a letter! They are pretty cool - one very pretty lady - maybe in her late 60's+ from Seattle. Now talking amongst themselves that no one (their grandkids) can write in cursive. I myself am struggling, as you can tell - so this is good practice! Maybe even a little therapeutic, to write letters the old-fashioned way! I hope some others are keeping your mailbox busy. I've thought about getting a Florida phone number and getting it so you could call me; maybe I should go ahead and do that -- and by the time everything is set up - you'll be OUT of there!! Yay - keep the faith!

Your Mom does send an occasional update, so I did learn^{er} that you got a new judge!! Bodyspeed - let's get this show on the road - I have heard of the other instance at the gas station you mentioned as well as several other situations around the country - where bail is offered when you've got to think the judge is crazy. And the reverse discrimination - is so rampant - We are the new minority. It's blatant. Ridiculous. Why we even recognize someone's race for anything (other than a demographic poll?!) seems... what's the word? mundane? obsolete? unnecessary? prejudicial? I dunno - my vocabulary needs work. Your Dad had a new word for me a while back - I told your Mom I was in a foul mood and he said to tell me I needed an....? opto-rectomy? (or something like that) Anyhow - it's a surgery to remove or cut the cord that attaches your butt from your eyes so you don't have such a shitty outlook. Now, that's old-guy humor - but don't tell him I said that!!!
W - & - @ ?!?! - but maybe I'll try it...

So that was 5 pages of jibberish already. Not sure there was much content there at all - told you this would be random!

Tell me more what's going on with you and yours. I did see the video interviews... but haven't seen your account. I hate to ask you Mom for it - seems nosy or insensitive. And I figure you will get out soon and can make a book or movie about this - I sure hope so. Not for anything but some vindication / recognition of what you've been put through, and MOST importantly, so people wake up and see how bad reverse discrimination has become!! SOAP BOX, PLEASE!

How is [redacted] holding up through this? And you and [redacted] (the relationship)? I sure hope you two are making it through this together and will be all the stronger for it. But I also have to imagine this could be incredibly tough for her. Sorry to hear she had to move, too. I sure hope you can both get back all that you had, and more.

Did you get to talk to [redacted] much? [redacted] told me about his marriage & new family. How exciting!! I hope the best for him - sounds like he jumped right in so he must know / love her (is it [redacted] or something like that)? Anyhow - I need to get something off (on my list to do) for [TOUCH-DOWN - landed in Santa Ana!] the new baby.
